Cooperation

First, before we start to talk about the cooperation we will ask you questions like, Should the University cooperate with either the private sector or the public one ? Why ? And the most important one : How and wich challenges will appear in the future ?

Before we answer to the question on that how the University should or not cooperate with either the private sector or the public one, we will tell you why such cooperation will be useful to students and the whole University as well.

The answer is doubled. On one hand, students expect gaining of skills in order to increase the possibility of better employment. On the other hand, these subjects consider this cooperation as an external source of human resources and participants of generations in education.

It has been clear that objectives from both sides are positive. These objectives are not only accepted but also preferred for the society in general. Now, what needs to be elaborated is how we will achieve those objectives in another way of cooperation.

Students expect their employing from this cooperation so we are living in a society wich goes through rapid changes. This means that attempts should be made in order to improve the study programs. After all, students should gain basic knowledge and skills so that they are able to adapt when ther are changes.

Continually, you will be informed of our cooperation between both private and public subjects.
